

THE BASHER

Invented by a Senior Scout from Dereham, Norfolk in England.

Note that the maul is loosely secured in the crutch of the two back legs. The haft should slide fairly snugly between the two guide bars at the front of the structure. The operating lines run through small iron blocks at the top and bottom of the frame.